

Abstract

The present invention relates to a composition with trace elements for nutrition. The composition is characterised by an increased content of selenium and / or zinc as a trace element.